
POLICY G010: GENDER EQUALITY AND WOMEN'S EMPOWERMENT POLICY

Responsible person:	CEO	Version:	1.1
Approved by Board of Directors on:	27 February 2019	Scheduled review date:	February 2021

PREAMBLE

This policy was written by So They Can (International) in Australia for use across all So They Can entities.

So They Can operates five entities registered in each of Australia, Kenya, Tanzania, New Zealand and USA, which are part of the So They Can Global Alliance.

In this policy, 'CEO' means CEO of So They Can (International), So They Can Kenya and So They Can Tanzania. Unless specified otherwise the 'Board' refers to the relevant So They Can board of the entity in which you are employed or located.

DEFINITIONS

Gender refers to the social differences between females and males throughout the life cycle that are learned, and though deeply rooted in every culture, are changeable over time, and have wide variations both within and between cultures. "Gender," along with class and race, determines the roles, power and resources for females and males in any culture. Historically, attention to gender relations has been driven by the need to address women's needs and circumstances as they are typically more disadvantaged than men. Increasingly, however, the humanitarian community is recognizing the need to know more about what men and boys face in crisis situations.

Gender equality or equality between women and men, refers to the equal enjoyment by women, girls, boys and men of rights, opportunities, resources and rewards. Equality does not mean that women and men are the same but that their enjoyment of rights, opportunities and life chances are not governed or limited by whether they were born female or male.

Gender equity means justice in the distribution of resources, benefits and responsibilities between women and men, boys and girls. The concept recognises that power relations between girls and boys, men and women are unequal, and that such inequalities should be addressed.

Gender-based violence is an umbrella term for any harmful act that is perpetrated against a person's will and that is based on socially ascribed (gender) differences between females and males. The nature and extent of specific types of GBV vary across cultures, countries and regions. Examples include sexual violence, including sexual exploitation/abuse and forced prostitution; domestic violence; trafficking; forced/early marriage; harmful traditional practices such as female genital mutilation; honour killings; and widow inheritance.

Women's empowerment involves awareness-raising, building of self-confidence, expansion of choices, increased access to and control over resources and actions to transform the structures and institutions which reinforce and perpetuate gender discrimination and inequality. Empowerment comes from within; women empower themselves. Increase women's power through power to; power with and power from within which focus on utilizing individuals and collective strengths to work towards common goals without coercion or domination. Women's empowerment is achieved when women and girls acquire the power to exercise their rights, act freely and fulfil their potential as full and equal members of their society.

SO THEY CAN POLICIES AND PROCEDURE

POLICY

So They Can's Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment Policy is in line with the United Nation's Fifth Sustainable Development Goal – to achieve gender equality and empower all women and girls—and is aligned with the Australian Government's gender equality and women's empowerment strategy.

The purpose of this Policy is to provide directions to So They Can and its partners to strategically advance gender equality goals within the organisations programs, procedures and systems, roles and accountabilities.

Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment are to be central in design, implementation, operation and evaluation of all So They Can projects and activities in all countries where So They Can works.

PRINCIPLES

So They Can acknowledges the critical role women play in accelerating the progress in development and through adopting this policy articulates commitment to the principles of gender equality and women's empowerment developed by UN Women:

- Establish high-level corporate leadership for gender equality.
- Treat all women and men fairly at work—respect and support human rights and non-discrimination.
- Ensure the health, safety and well-being of all women and men workers.
- Promote education, training and professional development for women.
- Implement enterprise development, supply chain and marketing practices that empower women.
- Promote equality through community initiatives and advocacy.
- Measure and publicly report on progress to achieve gender equality.

PROCEDURES

With respect to Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment, So They Can is fundamentally committed to:

- adopting a rights-based approach to issues of gender which promotes and advocates the rights of women and girls and models best practice in gender justice;
- increasing the capacity of women and girls to realise their rights, determine their life outcomes and influence decision-making in their households, communities and societies;
- eliminating gender inequalities in access to, control over and benefits from resources, education and health services and employment opportunities;
